

Pope Condemns Capitalism in Encyclical Announcement

By ROBERT C. DOTY
(C) New York Times News Service
ROME—Pope Paul VI declared yesterday that "the world is sick," and prescribed as a remedy urgent, unselfish, non-political action for economic and social justice.
In a 13,000-word encyclical letter—the most formal teaching instrument of the papacy—the Pope called upon all men of good will, believer and atheist alike, to take up responsibility for redressing a growing and dangerous imbalance between the world's "haves" and "have-nots"—individuals as well as nations.

The encyclical, the fifth of Pope Paul's 45-month reign, will be known, as are all such papal messages, by the first two words of its official Latin text—"Populorum Progressio" (The Development of Peoples).
To some observers the document had a strong leftist, almost Marxist, tone, containing a "bill of particulars" against economic and social sins of the capitalist world, balanced only by very general condemnation of "atheistic materialism." Others, however, held that traditional East-West polemics were properly treated almost as irrelevancies and that the Pope had focused instead on the more profound divisions, beyond ideologies, that run north and south between the developed and undeveloped nations.

"We must make haste; too many men are suffering," the Pope said. This note of urgency was the keynote of the document, Pope Paul's specific contribution to the development of basic ideas and doctrines expressed by his predecessors in the Papacy and by the Ecumenical Council, Vatican Two.
He condemned the evils of unrestrained capitalism and insisted that the concepts of private property and profit must be subordinated to "the fundamental right which each man has to find what is necessary for himself."

In various sections of the document the Pope made these points:
+The basic aspiration of man "to do more, know more and have more in order to be more" is being frustrated by a "growing imbalance" in the production and distribution of the world's goods.

With the primary election less than two months away, the Shafter Administration stepped up plans to muster votes in support of referendums for constitutional reform. More than 150 persons gathered in Harrisburg to discuss plans to gain support for the constitutional assembly. Page A2.

THE NATION

An escalation of the Vietnam war may be in the offing, sources in Washington have indicated. New speculation came yesterday when Secretary of State Dean Rusk disclosed the details of American acceptance and North Vietnamese rejection of the latest peace proposal, set forth by United Nations Secretary General U Thant. Streamlining of the bureau structure for grants-in-aid to state and local groups is underway in Washington. The move was brought about by critics who said the present system makes it difficult, if not impossible, to take advantage of federal plans to finance local programs. Page A3.

The Job Corps has a record of 70 per cent success in its program, official statistics claim. The Office of Economic Opportunity, anxious to put forth its best to sway the austerity-minded 90th Congress, made the figures public yesterday. Page A2.

THE WORLD

At Land's End, England, Royal Navy aircraft bombed the tanker Torrey Canyon, which has grounded on beaches along the English Channel with oil sludge. The tanker has been grounded off the coast for nearly a week and most of its cargo had leaked out. Incendiary bombs were dropped on the tanker last night and today to burn off as much of the petroleum as possible. The incident has wrecked England's vacation resorts. Page A3.

Pope Paul, in an encyclical pronouncement aimed at improving the lot of poor nations in the world, attacked capitalism as the most dangerous form of society. His leftist, almost-Marxist, document made only slight reference to "atheistic" values of the Communist philosophy. Page One.

In the Vietnam war, Viet Cong gunners shot down a huge "Puff the Magic Dragon" aircraft. It was the first time in the war that one of the flying arsenals had been gunned out of the air. Dunking the basketball, the forte of the big men in the game these days, was outlawed yesterday in colleges and high schools. In making the ruling, an official of the National Basketball Committee said the ban had been made "to equalize the offense and the defense." Page A8.

IT WAS DIFFERENT LAST YEAR

West German Government Warms Toward East Berlin

By DAVID BINDER

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
BONN — In more than one way East and West Germany have exchanged roles on the world stage during the last 12 months and the Easter holiday has provided the most telling examples.
A year ago the East Berlin regime was wearing the mask with the smile. It admitted scores of thousands of West Berliners on Easter-time passes to visit relatives on the Communist side of the wall. At the same time the ruling Socialist Unity (Communist) Party was offering to participate in talks with the West German Social Democratic Party.

In those days the Bonn Government was wearing the mask with the frown, threatening to lock up East German Communist speakers who set foot in West Germany.
This year it seems as if the two sides have exchanged the masks. The East Berlin control booths are locked tight and no West Berliners may visit relatives. The Communist regime of Walter Ulbricht is frowning.

But the Bonn government headed by Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger is straining to keep up a new campaign of smiles toward East Germany and the rest of East Europe.

The chancellor is working on the text of a note to the Soviet government in which he will offer a unilateral West German declaration of the renunciation of force in its dealings with "the other part of Germany", meaning Communist Germany.

Kiesinger offered this already in his initial government declaration Dec. 13, but he means to repeat it in clearer form within a fortnight.

Ulbricht has made clear that such a declaration is not enough for his German Democratic Republic (GDR), and it is probably not enough for the Soviet Union either.

He said last January that a "minimal program" for normalizing relations between the two Germanies would have to include a renunciation of force treaty signed by Bonn and East Berlin. So Ulbricht will undoubtedly frown at a mere declaration from Bonn.
In its newly conciliatory mood the Bonn government has also been preparing an offer of high level talks between officials of East and West Germany on technical questions. Such approval was almost unthinkable a year ago here, although it would have been hailed in East Berlin. However, with the reversal of roles, the Ulbricht government is presently uninterested in technical conferences. It is insisting now on unconditional recognition of the GDR.

The East German frown is apparent in many other current actions. Last week the Communists moved to deepen the split in the leadership of the Evangelical Church of Germany (Lutheran) by forcing its executive council to schedule separate meetings in East Germany and West Berlin.

Here on what is presently the smile side of Germany quite opposite attitudes are developing. See GERMANS, Page A-2

Communists Reject UN Peace Bid; Escalation Hinted

(C) N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Johnson announced yesterday that the United States had accepted a new three-step Vietnam peace proposal of United Nations Secretary General Thant, but that it had "learned regretfully" of Hanoi's apparent rejection of the proposal.
The President, speaking at a diplomatic luncheon for the visiting premier of Afghanistan, said he shared Thant's hope that none of the parties in the Vietnam war had "categorically turned his plan down."

But at an afternoon news conference, Secretary of State Dean Rusk indicated that Hanoi's "negative" response had stalled the U. N. bid to establish a "standstill truce" in Vietnam and open preliminary peace talks.

With congressional hawks urging intensification of the American air attacks on North Vietnam, well-placed officials acknowledge that the Secretary was, in effect, laying the groundwork for further military pressure against Hanoi. They said that a step-up in the air war was probable.

Rusk appealed to the North Vietnamese leaders to accept "some machinery somewhere that can lead to negotiations" and asserted that the United States was not abandoning the search for an acceptable road to peace.

His remarks also carried an edge of warning for Hanoi. He urged the North Vietnamese leaders to "give serious thought" to the situation. If they persist in their refusal to meet American demands, Rusk asserted, "the United States shall meet its commitments in Vietnam. We will do our duty there."

President Johnson said that the American reply to Thant's proposals had been delivered by Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg March 18 before the President and his top advisers left for the Vietnam strategy conference in Guam.

The Administration was understood to feel that it had made reasonable efforts to find a peace opening and thus could blame Hanoi's "intransigence," as Rusk put it, for any escalation of the war at this point.

Rusk said international peace efforts like Thant's and the proposals of Pope Paul VI last month had "invariably been negative, hostile and at times vituperative."

He was referring, in part, to statements from Hanoi Monday quoting a North Vietnamese Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying Thant's proposals "depart from reality" because they equate American and North Vietnamese responsibilities for a ceasefire. The Hanoi statement also said the Vietnam problem "has no concern with the United Nations and the United Nations has absolutely no right to interfere in any way."

In view of Hanoi's stand, Rusk was asked, were the channels of direct communications with Hanoi still open for peace probing?

"As far as we are concerned, the channels remain open," he said, "but I shouldn't exaggerate the point." Then, repeating a figure of speech that he often uses, Rusk added:

Television Actors Start Dawn Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists rejected an 11th-hour contract proposal from major radio and television networks last night and girded for a dawn strike.

Donald F. Conway, executive secretary of the 18,000-member AFTRA, said after talks broke up with the networks and a federal mediator: "The strike is on."

Conway said the strike will hit all national programming throughout the country on NBC, ABC, and CBS radio and television and on the Mutual radio network.

Programs that have been taped after last Nov. 18 also will be affected because the union made an agreement with the network on that date that no programs could be taped for use during a strike, Conway said.

CBS said, "We regret the course AFTRA has chosen to follow." A spokesman said the company had not yet made plans for coping with the strike "because it hasn't happened yet."

An NBC spokesman said the network planned to use administrative personnel to replace strikers. ABC and Mutual officials could not be reached.

Federal mediator Albert Deser joined the negotiations Tuesday to help get a contract to replace one that expired Nov. 15. See STRIKE, Page A-2

ALLEGHENY PLAN APPROVED

By HUGH FLEMING
TWO Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday granted Allegheny Airlines operating rights between Erie and Toronto effective May 24, 1967.

Allegheny officials in Pittsburgh said last night that they were hopeful of starting the new service by late 1967.

Using Erie as a gateway to the United States, Allegheny would be permitted under the CAB ruling handed down yesterday to offer single plane service to and from Toronto in a number of cities throughout its 13-state system.

Single plane service means that the plane at the point of origin will carry the passenger through to his point of destination.

The tentative schedule released by Allegheny yesterday calls for Washington-Toronto service with stops at Harrisburg and Erie; from Baltimore with stops at Harrisburg and Erie; from Philadelphia with a stop only at Erie; from Harrisburg with a stop only at Erie; and from Bradford and Williamsport, with a stop at Erie.

Under the CAB ruling, Allegheny would also be permitted to offer convenient connecting service to Toronto from a number of other cities throughout its system.

The airlines' head offices in Pittsburgh said the carrier had not yet determined what cities would be included in its initial service pattern.

The CAB yesterday handed down a companion decision awarding North Central Airlines authority to operate between Toronto and Detroit.

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Army and air force personnel led yesterday to encircle and crush a band of guerrillas the government says is supported by Communist Cuba and organized by Ernesto Guevara, Cuban guerrilla expert.

No new casualties were reported in the area of Bolivia's tropical southeast where fighting Monday resulted in 30 deaths. Seven of those killed were army troops.

Gen. Jorge Belmonte Ardiel, armed forces chief, said the guerrilla group, believed between 100 and 200 men, was slowly being surrounded by a government force of 2,000.

Russians Have New Sea Route

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
MOSCOW — The Soviet Union is preparing to open its "Great Northern Sea Route," linking Europe and Asia across the top of Siberia, to vessels of all nations, the head of the Soviet Union's swiftly growing merchant fleet said yesterday.
The sea route, plowed 2,500 miles through the Arctic Ocean by powerful icebreakers, is kept open 150 to 160 days a year. It significantly shortens shipping between northern Europe and northern Asia.

The distance from the Soviet port of Archangel, in north European Russia, and Vladivostok, on the Pacific Ocean, is about 6,500 miles via the great northern sea route.

By comparison, the distance between the two ports via the Suez Canal is about 15,000 miles.

The announcement that the Soviet Union would open the Arctic sea route to all nations was made at a news conference by Viktor G. Bakayev, minister of the merchant marine.

At an informal interview after the conference, Bakayev said that foreign vessels would be permitted to refuel and use facilities of the isolated ports along the Arctic route.

An aide broke in to remark, "The route will not be free of charge, of course."

The great northern sea route is defined by the Soviet Union as an internal shipping link, since much of it is within the country's 12-mile territorial limit and all of it depends on the use of the Soviet icebreakers and shore facilities.

In 1965, the United States Coast Guard icebreaker North Wind abandoned an attempt to navigate the Arctic route when it was repeatedly challenged by Soviet warships and military aircraft.

Job Corps Record Hits 70 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Statistics of the Job Corps showed yesterday it has a 70 per cent efficiency rating on its job—getting school dropouts off the do-nothing road.

The figures: As of the end of February, 64,378 young men and women had been in the Job Corps for varying lengths of time, some only for a week or so, since it began in January 1965.

Of the total, 45,49, or some 70 per cent, were doing something. Some 76 per cent of these had a job, 6 per cent had returned to school and 2 per cent had joined the military services.

Some 33,000 now are enrolled in 115 Job Corps centers. They are 16 to 22 years of age, are free to leave when they wish but may stay as long as two years. Most of them finish a skill training program in about nine months.

Behind the statistics there are individuals with success stories and there are disappointments, boys who expected a job at $2.50 an hour and had to settle for $2.25. There are some who haven't found a job.

"We're making a concerted effort, every effort to place them," Job Corps Director William Kelly said in an interview.

Jamestown High Opens Addition

JAMESTOWN — More than 1,900 students at Jamestown High School began using the new $1.8 million addition this morning after formal acceptance of the structure last night by the school board.

The construction of the addition, scheduled for completion last September, was hampered by bad weather and a construction workers' strike last year. It brought several postponements of completion.

After formal acceptance of the new building, school board President E. Milton Johnson and Dr. Harold O'Neal, school superintendent, conducted a tour of the facility for present and past school board members and their families.

The highlight of the tour was an inspection of the 42 by 75 Olympic-sized swimming pool. Other facilities inspected were the combination study hall and library, the library instruction rooms, a library service center which will serve all city schools, and 11 new classrooms.

The free showing of "Mr. Pennypacker and The Talking Machine" will be Saturday at 2, 4, 7 and 8:30 p.m., and Sunday at 1:15, 2:45 and 4 p.m.

Uniontown Man Held in County Funds Shortage

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Controller Paul Thomas Jr. of Fayette County was arrested yesterday and accused of failing to keep a close enough watch on some county funds in which a $71,000 shortage was discovered.

Thomas was arraigned before Alderman Jacob J. Ruben in Uniontown on charges of malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance in office and was released on bond pending a hearing to be held within 10 days.

The charges were filed by John A. Maggioncalda, chief county detective who works out of the office of Dist. Atty. John R. Hoye.

Shafer Administration Opens Campaign for Reform Ballots

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Shafer Administration spread the seeds yesterday for its "grassroots" campaign to gain changes in Pennsylvania's 93-year-old constitution.

Some 150 representatives of various groups from across the state gathered in the Capitol for pep talks from Gov. Shafer, Lt. Gov. Raymond J. Broderick and former Gov. George M. Leader, a Democrat.

The representatives, who included several lobbyists and public relations people, were divided into four groups which attended seminars on how to gain voter approval for the proposals.

Goal of the campaign is voter passage in the May 16 primary election of the constitutional convention proposal and eight proposed constitutional amendments.

Hence, the label "Committee for Nine Yes Votes" for the organization which will handle the day-to-day efforts for constitutional reform.

Leader and former Gov. William W. Scranton, a Republican, are co-chairmen of this committee. They also are co-chairman of the Citizens Committee for Constitutional Revision, a similar organization formed earlier in the year.

If the voters approve the constitutional convention proposal, delegates would be elected in November to rewrite four parts of the constitution, starting in December. The convention results would require voter approval in next year's primary.

Shafer, a Republican, said, "There is no greater issue facing the people of Pennsylvania today than making the constitution a better document."

The governor recalled that when he signed the constitutional convention bill March 15 he called for 10,000 Pennsylvanians to join a "crusade" for modernizing the state charter.

"You are the beginning of that 10,000 committee," he told the audience in the House Chamber.

Shafer said he wanted the audience to do three things:

1. Enlist the rest of the 10,000 persons.
2. Visit as many groups in their home areas as they could.
3. Keep in direct communication with Shafer, Scranton and Leader on any state areas that might need more promotion "so that the three governors can go into those areas and assist in the campaign."

"The real enemy of reform is apathy," Leader told the group. "The selfish, vested interests go out on election day and do their work."

Besides the convention proposal, the voters will decide on eight proposed constitutional amendments.

The eight break down into a $500 million conservation fund issue and seven article-by-article amendments including one to permit a governor to succeed himself and another to provide quick amendment to the constitution in times of emergency.

Scranton was in Europe on vacation but he sent a cable expressing his support for constitutional revision. The cable said he and his wife, Mary, would be "ready to go to work" for revision when they return.

LBJ Asks Tough Anti-Crime Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson called anew yesterday night for quick congressional passage of what he termed urgent administration legislation aimed at combating lawlessness and street violence.

American crime statistics, he declared, represent "our national disgrace."

In a speech delivered at a dinner meeting here of the National Conference on Crime Control, Johnson voiced a plea for "all the help we can get" to enact the safe-streets and crime-control bill he sent to Congress earlier this year.

This measure, said Johnson, "is fundamental to the safety of the individual, the security of the home and the enduring stability of our society." A Senate committee has been holding hearings on the proposal.

The chief executive, while stating that street crimes have created a climate of fear that must be eliminated, did not limit his vision of a crime-free society to that area.

"In economic terms," he said, "white-collar crime—although it is much less visible—is considerably greater. The economic cost of crimes such as petty theft, consumer fraud, antitrust violations and embezzlement dwarf all crimes of violence."

Johnson said that while 8,500 Americans were dying in Vietnam, about 50,000 met violent deaths at the hands of other Americans.

While he did not say all these were the result of criminal activity, he declared "the grim statistics of our crime record is our national disgrace."

More important than statistics, he said, is the "climate of fear that crime creates."

Johnson said he and his audience are mutually pledged to employ all the resources they command "to control and finally eliminate that climate of fear."

The recent report of the National Crime Commission was described by Johnson as a landmark document. But he said it would mean little "until its findings and recommendations become the actual impulses for change and redirection all through this land."

The President said the administration-sponsored legislation now pending in Congress "provides the kind of assistance local governments need to meet the problems that all of them face" in confronting lawlessness.

Meanwhile, he went on, "there is much that every state, and every city and county can do."

He suggested revision of state criminal codes, pooling of facilities, experiments with community treatment of lesser offenders and new efforts at cooperation among governments.

In any case, Johnson said, governments must make it evident that the war on crime "will be unrelenting."

Goldberg Says He Has No Senate Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, issued another statement yesterday saying, "I am not a candidate," for senator from New York.

There have been news accounts of political talk that Goldberg, a Democrat, would challenge New York Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits next year.

The State Department issued a statement by Goldberg when asked about a New York Times story yesterday saying leading Democrats expect Goldberg to run against Javits.

Germans

-- surprising when contrasted with the frowns of 1966.

For example, leading members of the Free Democratic Party have been proposing full-scale West German recognition of East Germany.

The West German government is believed by seasoned observers to be searching for a new form of coexistence with East Germany short of full-scale juridical recognition of the Communist regime.

The East German government is thought here to be willing to accept an arrangement for limited cooperation with West Germany as soon as Bonn demonstrates acknowledgement of the factual existence of the Communist state.

But at the moment both sides seem to be wearing masks disguising the real features of their policies.

there does not exist "an absolute and unconditional" right of property, and public authorities must intervene to put revenue at the service of the community.

"The phenomenon of the rich growing ever richer while the poor remain poor carries with it the threat of violence. Revolution is to be condemned as basically destructive, 'save where there is manifest, long-standing tyranny which would do great damage to fundamental personal rights and dangerous harm to the common good of the country.'"

"Rich nations must bear the cost of development of the poor, 'otherwise the continued greed of the rich nations could only provoke the judgment of God and the wrath of the poor, with consequences no one can foretell.'"

"It is an 'intolerable scandal' that vast resources that should go for the relief of suffering humanity are diverted to the armaments race. Renewing an appeal made during his 1965 visit to Bombay, India, the Pontiff called for nations to put into a 'world fund' money taken from such 'wasteful' expenditures.

"An 'effective world authority' must be developed to direct the war against misery and injustice for which the call to action has now sounded.

"Excess populations complicate development problems. Governments have the right to intervene with 'appropriate information' and 'suitable measures,' presumably on birth control. But these must 'be in conformity with the moral law.'"

The Roman Catholic view—at least until Pope Paul makes his long-awaited declaration on birth control—moral law bans all chemical or mechanical contraception. Probably no individual section of the encyclical will provoke more exhaustive analysis and debate than Paragraph 37 in which the Pope gives his views on population problems in relation to economic development.

"When you pick up the telephone and nobody answers on the other end, is that a channel or not? Or if you find yourself in a telephone conversation and the other end hangs up—I will leave it to you as to whether that is a channel.

"I can say at the moment that our channels are not very efficient, to say the least."

The American message to Thant was vaguely worded on the terms of any military ceasefire and the participants in preliminary peace discussions—two difficult and unresolved issues.

The secretary also declined to be pinned down on whether the Saigon regime and the Viet Cong would be represented at peace talks, under Thant's proposals.

While recognizing the complications produced by population pressures, the Pope warned against the temptation to "check demographic increase by means of radical measures" and called for action according to "conscience enlightened by God's law authentically interpreted," that is, by the church.

The Pontiff's strictures against unchecked "liberalism" in economic affairs, his reservations on private property and profit, and criticisms of both colonialism and "neo-colonialism" seemed to focus most harshly on phenomena associated with western capitalist civilization.

In terms of conventional east-west polemics, the Communist world seemed to have been left off with a few general observations deploring "that which is based upon a materialistic and atheistic philosophy which respects neither the religious orientation of life to its final end, nor human freedom and dignity."

But some competent analysts asserted that the whole thrust of the encyclical went beyond what the Pope seemed to treat as outdated "cold war" ideological contests between the Communist and non-Communist worlds. According to this view, the document focuses instead on the inescapable and potentially more dangerous division between the world's northern "haves," socialist and capitalist alike, and the Southern Hemisphere's "have-nots" of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Strike

One of the major issues was salaries and fees for newsmen in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. Reporters sought a base salary of $325 a week, plus 50 per cent of all commercial fees until the fees equal base salary. Affat that, newsmen would retain 10 per cent of the fees.

One-Sided Concession

It does not take too long a memory to recall Hitler's divide and conquer technique nor the compromises and concessions that permitted the over-running of nation after nation prior to World War II. It requires an even shorter memory to recall the infiltration of communism since World War II. The time came to call a halt and that was done in Vietnam.

Whether Vietnam was the time and place to stand firm is beside the point now. The United States is committed. Any sign of weakness will simply prolong the war and cost more lives.

Earlier this week Democratic Senators Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania said a brief suspension of bombings would test Moscow's willingness to bring pressure on Hanoi to begin talks.

Sen. Maggie Smith Not Scared

WASHINGTON—There's at least one member of Congress willing to stand up against the silver-haired congressman from South Carolina, Mendel Rivers, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. That member is a lady—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara is not in the same category. McNamara is a stand-up guy when it comes to the TFX contract of the anti-missile system, or atomic-powered airplane carriers. On these he will buck Congress. But when it comes to Mendel Rivers and "political generals," McNamara gets reserved.

This was revealed during a closed-door interchange between Sen. Maggie Smith and McNamara in discussing armed services appropriations. Sen. Smith recalled that on Dec. 12, 1964, McNamara announced that he was transferring "political generals," namely members of Congress and key federal employees, from the active to the inactive reserve because they would probably never be called up for active duty in time of war.

"Why did you subsequently take action to nullify this and practically remove or reverse your position regarding members of Congress and key federal employees?" Mrs. Smith asked.

"I don't think the policy has been reversed, Sen. Smith," replied McNamara. He went on to say that he had made an exception in the case of one congressman and one deputy assistant secretary.

Sen. Smith was persistent. "I just don't see what purpose these members of Congress and key federal employees serve as members of the reserve if they can't be called up," she asked.

"I agree with you," commented McNamara. McNamara's memory proved to be faulty. Subsequently his office inserted "additional classified information" in the Senate Armed Services Committee record showing that Congressman Rivers had intervened with deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus Vance and pressured him into overturning the directive of his boss, Secretary McNamara, against political generals. McNamara's office claimed that his directive was not reversed, merely "modified."

Strange Place In the Sky

There is a place, 7,000 feet in the sky, where there is no day or night, no rain, no snow. It is a cave inside Cheyenne Mountain, a few miles from Colorado Springs. Inside, 425 men and women man the visual displays, the message centers, the computers of the North American Air Defense Command. If a missile attack is launched, NORAD will give the country fifteen minutes warning.

It isn't much. From launch to impact, a Soviet missile requires about 30 minutes. Three huge radar stations at Clear, Alaska; Thule, Greenland; and Fylingdales Moor, England, scan the Russian horizon every minute of every day. The system is called BMEWS (Ballistic Missile Early Warning System). Behind it, a picket fence of radar from the Aleutians across the top of Canada to Greenland and England ways its wary face.

These are supported by Canadian and American Air Force radar from Hudson Bay to Brownsville, Texas. Huge constellations, with radar tuners, patrol far offshore in the Atlantic and Pacific, watching and listening. All of the information is fed into the mountain cave.

The system is the best that money can buy. But it isn't good enough. It can stop a manned bomber attack, but it can't do much about a clutch of ballistic missiles flying at 17,500 miles an hour, protected by hundreds of decoys. America may lose 70,000,000 people in the first 30 minutes.

The 425 in the mountain will not be among them. They are needed to direct the Air battle. Mount Cheyenne is 9,565 feet up. It is composed of granite 100,000,000 years old. The cave is 2,500 feet under the peak. Inside the entrance are two steel doors fifty feet apart. Each consists of 30 tons of steel and, when one is open, the other is automatically shut.

All of it is manned by Americans and Canadians. Their governments signed a pact almost ten years ago to man NORAD and its headquarters. Inside the cave are tunnels, ranging in height from 10 feet to 50. Elevators, built in 1960, carry 100 people at a time. They also have hydraulic shock dampers.

There is no window anywhere. In case of crisis, the Cheyenne complex can support the lives of 300 officers and technicians for one month. There is an operating room, a dental office, a pharmacy. Five hundred hot meals can be served at a sitting.

The south tunnel is an air intake. The north tunnel is for traffic. The functions of the tunnels can be reversed. There is a storage cache for 1,300,000 gallons of uncontaminated water.

Pearson

But we are inclined to agree with the response of Senator Hugh Scott, Pennsylvania Republican, when the three appeared on a television-radio program. Scott said that in the absence of any evidence that Hanoi wants to talk any pause would enable North Vietnam to build up men and supplies and help the enemy "clobber the dickens out of us."

One cannot help but wonder if the lessons of recent history have already been forgotten by those who suggest a course without equally concrete concessions from the North Vietnamese.

Why not tell the North Vietnamese that we would come to the conference table if they would stop sending troops into South Vietnam but with no offer on our part to disperse with the bombing. This—in reverse—is what is being asked of the United States.

Any reading of the record, however, shows clearly that it was not only a reversal, it was a rout.

"Political generals" serving as members of Congress and obviously not in a position to be called for active duty in war were permitted to keep their rank, their right to promotion and their right to increased pay.

Sen. Smith, meanwhile, has proceeded to make sure that at least three of these political reserve officers do not get promoted until the Pentagon answers some pertinent questions as to whether they would really be called up for active service in the case of mobilization and, if so, what their assignments would be.

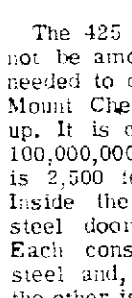

One promotion Sen. Smith is blocking is that of her Republican colleague from Iowa, Jack Miller, now a colonel, who wants to be a brigadier general. Secretary McNamara, in his directive of Dec. 12, 1964, had barred such a promotion—that is until Rep. Rivers intervened.

Others whom Mrs. Smith is blocking are John A. Lang Jr., administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force, and John S. Patton, special adviser to the assistant chief of staff for Air Force intelligence.

In case of mobilization, Lang would be assigned to serve as assistant to the superintendent of the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs. So Sen. Smith asked the very pertinent question as to whether the job of adviser to the Air Force Academy was more important than assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force. Obviously it is not. Therefore, suggests Sen. Smith, why should Lang be promoted and his pay increased?

In case of emergency, Sen. Miller of Iowa would be made deputy assistant for logistics planning in the office of the deputy chief of staff for systems and logistics of the Air Force. So Sen. Smith wants to know whether this is more important than being a United States Senator. Obviously not.

In case of emergency, Patton would be called on to serve as assistant to the commander of the Air Force Security Service, rather than in his present job as adviser to the assistant chief of staff for Air Force intelligence. Sen. Smith wants to know why the reshuffle when Patton is allegedly doing a good and important job where he is. So why should he have a higher rank and more pay in the reserves?

SYLVIA PORTER

Costs Of Air Pollution

The yearly cost of air pollution to you, the average American family, is already up to $230 — and this cost probably will double by 1975. You pay "hidden" costs of pollution by having your clothes cleaned more frequently because of air-borne filth; by washing and replacing your car more often; by visiting your physician more frequently with problems ranging from a speck of soot in your eye to bronchitis and emphysema; through the decreased value of your pollution-affected property.

Porter

Yet our nation's spending to combat pollution of air AND water averages only $100 per family each year. You, the average American individual, toss away nearly 1,500 pounds of "aerial garbage" each year, primarily in the form of exhaust from your car and fumes from your incinerator. You throw away some 1,640 pounds of refuse each year. Your actions alone intensify our pollution problem because, as one observer puts it, "one person's trashbasket is another's living space."

Nearly two-thirds of us, 120,000,000 Americans, live in communities affected by air pollution, a rise of 50 per cent just during the past 15 years. Today, waterways throughout the nation are being polluted at so rapid a rate that unless drastic measures are taken now, we could run out of clear water to drink by 1980. Obviously, air and water pollution is no longer just a blitty problem.

In two score miles of almost any American river to day," notes the Calgon Corp., manufacturers of water treatment equipment, "the same gallon of water may cool a blast furnace, bathe a baby, refresh the air of an office building, wash some dishes, spray a water skier, spin the blades of a turbine and carry away domestic wastes. It must be cleaned for every use."

Who are the key culprits polluting our air and waterways and who will pay most of the cost of cleaning these up?

Answer to both questions: YOU AND I.

Most of today's air pollution comes from home and apartment incinerators, fires and automobile fumes. Only one-third comes from industrial plants, factories, etc. Again to quote Calgon Corp. "In our society where hygiene is almost an obsession, more than 5,000 communities still dump their raw or inadequately treated sewage into a convenient stream or lake."

Right now and in the years directly ahead, tens of millions of us will be required to pay higher apartment rents to cover the costs of better incinerators; extra charges (beginning this fall) for devices to reduce our auto exhaust fumes; other extra charges to install new sewage treatment devices on our pleasure boats; additional taxes for an array of federal, state and local pollution drives.

At least half of our state legislatures are now debating new pollution controls and, in many cases, stiff new taxes for offenders. In Massachusetts, no fewer than 40 separate anti-pollution measures are being considered. Undoubtedly, we'll see higher tags on many goods produced by companies which are forced to make new and expensive investments in pollution control.

And this is just for today. In the future, far more drastic measures are likely. The proposals range from a ban on gasoline-fueled cars in cities to a requirement that householders pre-sort all trash into bottles, paper, cans, etc., to the imposition of special taxes on manufacturers of packaging materials which do not deteriorate in burning or burying.

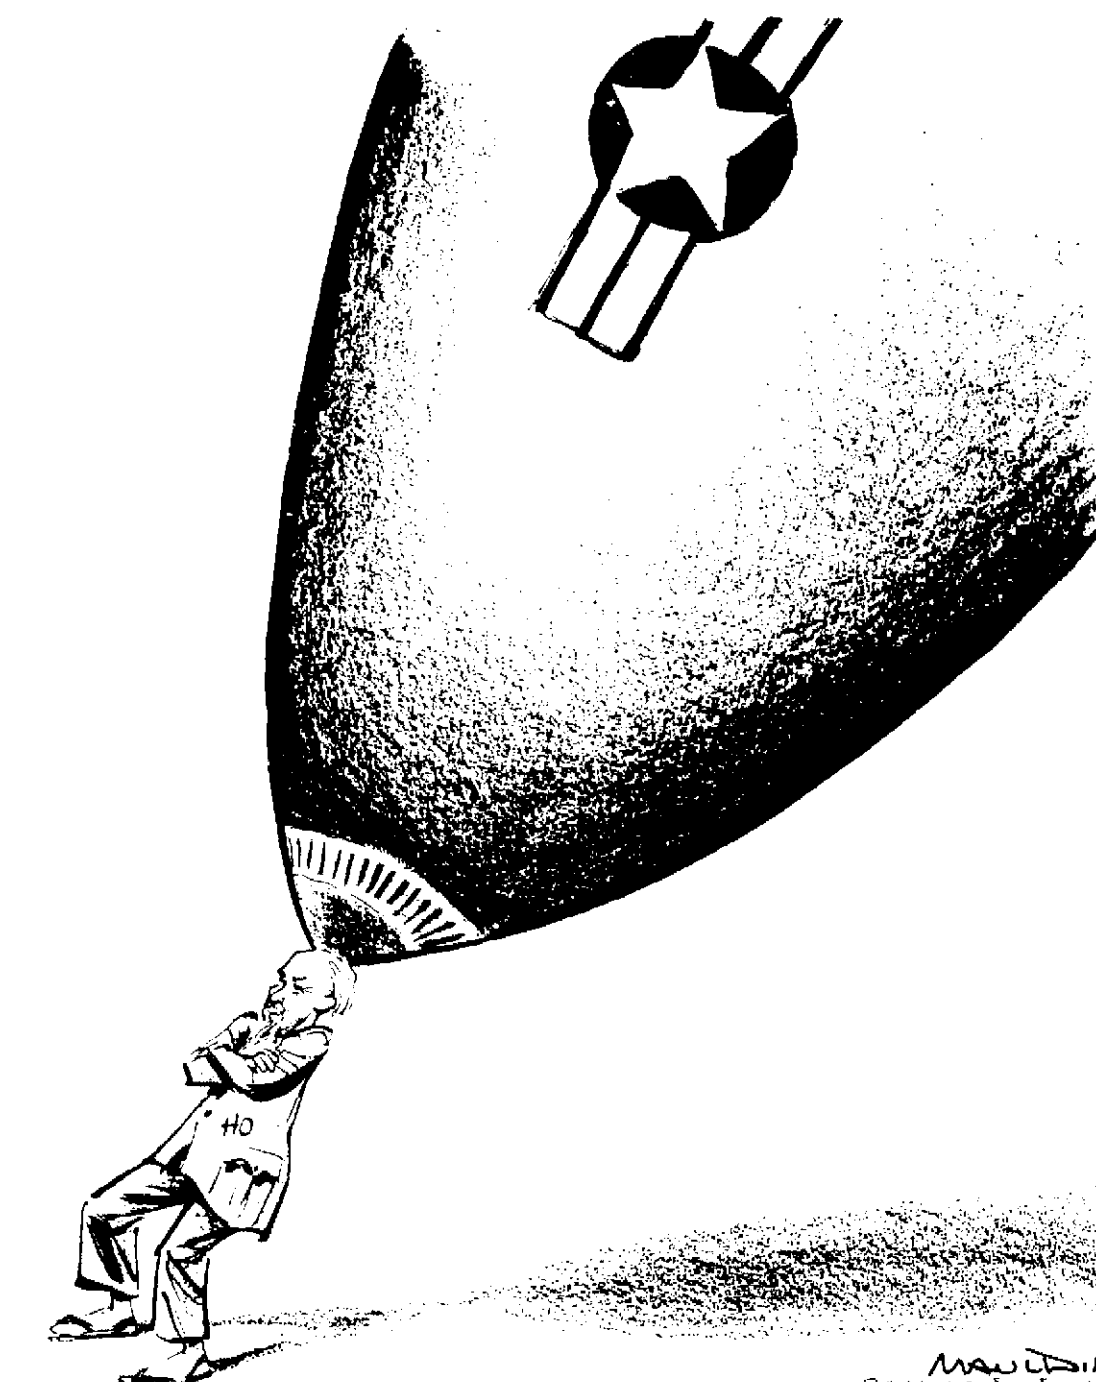

But the key points are that you and I are the biggest polluters of our air and water and having done this, now we must start to bear the biggest cost of cleaning them up.

Humphrey's Liberation

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — President Johnson seems to have liberated vice president Hubert H. Humphrey from his opulent doghouse, after years of second-rate assignments, odd political and ceremonial chores, the happy shooter from Minnesota has been turned loose in Europe on what promises to be the start of a much more active political and policy role.

H.H. has played an odd part in this administration. The President has seen him quite a lot. Whenever the Vice President had an idea, which happens to the old agitator-proprietor quite often, he had access to the White House or to the Department heads, but somehow he never seemed to be given the central policy position he thought he would get after the election of 1964.

That official vice-presidential residence President Johnson talked about after the Atlantic City nominating convention somehow vanished in the inflationary scare of 1966. For a while it looked as if he might be given the task of coordinating the poverty and urban reorganization programs, but this never developed much further than presiding over a few home front cabinet committees.

He was always busy enough in his two big offices in the Senate and across from the White House to be three appointments behind schedule, but he often seemed to be off somewhere addressing unreported political rallies in small towns, and not so long ago he was even jolting from the political platforms about sharing the fate of Elbridge Gerry, Daniel D. Tompkins, William A. Wheeler, Levi P. Morton, Garrett A. Hobart and "all those other well-known Vice Presidents of the United States."

Early this month, however, the President all but said he would favor Humphrey for Vice President again in 1968 and soon thereafter, the President asked him to make a survey of our problem areas of Western Europe, of which there are many.

There are obvious advantages to giving the Vice President more prominent visibility in the coming year, one of which is to build him up to counter Bobby Kennedy in the future. The likelihood is that the President is going to have to wage an election campaign next year under extremely awkward circumstances, with the war going on and probably with a whopping big budget deficit on the books.

The old Roosevelt coalition of the south, the intellectuals, and the workers of the large urban areas of the north and west is less reliable now than at any time since FDR put it together. The large Republican newspapers that could not swallow Barry Goldwater in 1964 are likely to abandon President Johnson in 1968 and the luck of the draw in the critical Senate races is very much against the Democrats.

They have 23 seats at stake in 68 to the Republicans' 11, and already many of these running Democrats are so worried about the decline in Johnson's popularity in the opinion polls that they are not counting on the President's support this time so much as they are fearing it. Consequently, Humphrey will have plenty of work to do, and the more it can be shown between now and then that he is taking an active part in the great policy questions at home and abroad, the more effective he is likely to be as a campaigner, and a potential Kennedy opponent later on.

This '68 rumble may prove to be the most trying adventure since Humphrey's old fist and brickbat campaigns of the '30's. He has had to proclaim the morality of militarism in Vietnam to his liberal friends during the past year. There was no way he could avoid it without repudiating his own President, which would have been awkward, but the disenchanted liberals do not like it and all his valorous service to their liberal causes has not reconciled them to their old favorite.

Humphrey, however, will take it on if that's what the President wants him to do. He has survived the ordeal of the last year in good spirits. He has retained the gift of doing whatever is put before him without complaining. Far from seeking an elaborate official mansion and more meaningless ceremonial duties, he has even moved out of his modest family house in the suburbs and into an apartment near the Capitol.

Just when he reconciled himself to the spear carrier's role out back, he has been called up front. At this point in the 1964 campaign, he needed Johnson more than Johnson needed him. After the 1968 conventions, if Humphrey is renominated, this position may be reversed.

Very system he proposes be drastically modified on the national level!

Pennsylvania (like the federal government) has its overall tax revenue program, whereupon some of it is redistributed to local political subdivisions within the state (like the federal government to the states).

These local political subdivisions—counties, cities, townships, boroughs—are constantly squawking for more and more, a greater share of state revenues.

To illustrate the point: why a state school subsidy (which is distributed by the state back to the individual school districts)—why not let the individual districts handle the revenue problem themselves?

The answer of course: some (poorer) districts never would make the grade.

The answer is the same on the national level, in relation to the state and what is or is not returned to the states.

Governor Shafer is interested in seeing that Pennsylvania receives a more favorable and equitable share (as what Pennsylvania isn't?—which brings up the interesting point of shouldn't the same problem in Pennsylvania's own back yard be considered with equal zest?

What Mr. Shafer is driving at in simplest terms is this: Pennsylvania pays in far more than it gets back.

For example, in 1964 the total federal aid distributed to the states amounted to around $9 1/2 billion, of which amount it is estimated Pennsylvania paid $591,000,000 into the federal pot."

Penalty for not doing so: perhaps for one thing.

The general idea behind the federal programming on the tax-revenue basis to which Mr. Shafer is opposed is to provide the less fortunate states with money they otherwise wouldn't have.

There is nothing complicated about it, in principle. The complication is in the mechanics and the various ideologies as to "how" such a program should be handled.

It can be aptly called the "share-the-wealth" plan (on the governmental rather than the individual scale).

But a good, hard look at the idea itself perhaps is in order—from the "local" or Pennsylvania, standpoint.

What is happening right here in Pennsylvania under Mr. Shafer's own nose—other than the very system he proposes be drastically modified on the national level!

Pennsylvania got back roughly $483,000,000.

What Governor Shafer is driving at is that Pennsylvania should receive more—far more than it does from the federal government. Under his plan he has advocated a tax-sharing plan that would give the states about $3 billion annually from the federal government—which would work out to about $300 million a year for Pennsylvania.

So far so good—except perhaps for one thing.

The general idea behind the federal programming on the tax-revenue basis to which Mr. Shafer is opposed is to provide the less fortunate states with money they otherwise wouldn't have.

Gore Strikes Again

(c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee is nothing if not dauntless, a fellow who is accustomed to disappearing under this or that steamroller, then arising only slightly flattened to fight again. He was one of the few Democrats who had the temerity to question the benevolent stewardship of a former Senate majority leader named Lyndon Johnson. A dedicated foe of what, with old-fashioned scorn, he still calls "the interests," a man whose temperature rises with every point on the interest rate, Senator Gore has gone down debating in such varied lost causes as opposition to the tax cut of 1964, the filibuster against the communications satellite bill, and resistance to the constitutional amendment to provide permanently for presidential succession.

Along the way, however, he was the author of a clean elections bill that the Senate, by some unaccountable oversight, passed in 1960; the House corrected this unseemly Senate default on the club spirit by letting the measure die.

Therefore, when Congress mixed campaign legislation with legislation last year, by providing that taxpayers could designate a dollar apiece to go into a fund to finance presidential campaigns, it was only to be expected that the redoubtable Gore would lead the last-ditch opposition.

The bill was passed anyway but Albert Gore is not a man to take no for a permanent answer, and now he intends to submit an amendment to another tax bill that would repeal the campaign financing plan. This is a useful step because whatever else may be said of the plan, it was passed by Congress last year without much study and at a time when everybody but Gore wanted to adjourn rather than debate complex and controversial matters.

It does not follow, however, that simple repeal is the right medicine. The new Gore amendment, in fact, could become the vehicle for a thorough study of the financing proposal, of the whole troublesome question of political money in America, and—with the impetus, if any, provided by the Dodd and Powell ethics cases—comprehensive and modern legislation controlling campaign contributions and expenditures.

Gore has raised at least three sharp questions about the legislation passed last year. It would provide more than $30-million apiece for the two major parties in 1968 (if enough voters designate part of their tax payments for that purpose) and he contends that the controls on the spending would be so loose that this would constitute a gigantic political slush fund. It would put "minor" parties—which have a perfect right to run presidential candidates—at a crippling disadvantage. And while the tax money would not eliminate the necessity for political parties to raise money privately, it would tend to reduce the willingness of citizens to contribute to presidential campaigns.

The money would be available only for expenditures made during September and October of a presidential campaign year, and then only as reimbursement after the election. Thus it would not help parties between elections and since, in practice, television and newspaper advertising for candidates has to be paid for in cash, money would still have to be raised or borrowed to meet these costs before the government money could be made available.

And while the money plainly could be spent to pay for a presidential candidate's television time, and plainly could not be spent for hauling voters to the polls (since they would presumably vote in the elections as well as the presidential contest), what else is permissible? Staff salaries? Airplane travel? Polling? And who, other than the two national committees, would be authorized to spend such money and claim government reimbursement?

Beyond these practical matters, there are at least two deeper questions. Is it really desirable for the federal government to finance any part of any political party's expenditures? And even if it is, is it a constitutional exercise for a voter to designate some part of his tax money for a specific purpose? How, for instance, does that differ in principle from allowing a pacifist to specify that some part of his taxes may not be spent for military purposes?

Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, sponsor of the campaign financing bill, is reported to be preparing clarifying amendments.

Steele-ing The Sports Scene

Down The Drain?

What's this nonsense about the Warren Hot Stove League Program?

Good, old sports-minded Warren can't even get enough people to a meeting to guarantee that we'll have the program this year.

And most of the fellows and gals that show up are the same people that have been carrying the program for years! Well, I guess it's like every other organization: the "old guard" is expected to shoulder all the responsibility and the do-nothings sit around and enjoy the benefits.

Last year 730 boys played baseball all summer under the program on 56 teams, and a lot of already over-burdened merchants and other business people provided the sponsorship fees and bought uniforms.

Yet there have been no more than a handful of parents and interested fans at past elections.

Oh, sure, the program always gets off the ground and usually survives the summer, but it's like shoveling you-know-what against the tide every year.

One of the ridiculous aspects of the situation is that several of the old reliables that help out annually don't even have boys in the program!

Let's suppose that this handful of people finally get fed up with the whole mess. What would the consequences be?

Well, for one thing, there'd be about 730 boys roaming around the streets during the early evening hours this summer. Unless you want to send your son to camp.

And you might as well forget about that potential major leaguer. Warren hasn't sent a boy to the "biggs" yet, but fellows like Nick Creola Jr., Barney Gidders and "Wink" Rickerson all made it into organized baseball from a Hot Stove League start. And don't count out "Nummy" Creola and Roy Swanson, both Hot Stove League products.

The program may also keep a few boys out of trouble. Just one would be reward enough.

The organization issued its latest appeal of many in yesterday's edition and pointed out that even fathers willing to serve in an administrative capacity would be welcome.

The league meets tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the Holy Redeemer Church basement. It would be nice to see a few new faces. The parents that won't attend will be the first to complain that there's nothing for their boys to do if the program falls through.

Well, if that happens Warren will be unique: the only city of its size in the area and maybe in the state without a baseball program.

Good, old sports-minded Warren.

Pearce's Brainchild

Even if the kids don't have anything to do this summer, at least the "Old-Timers" will.

Dick Pearce's brainchild is slowly but surely taking form and it appears that a gang of fellows that have thrilled the local public on the athletic field over the past 50 years will hold a long-overdue reunion.

The old war-horses are even thinking of the youth of today. As reported in yesterday's edition, the association will divide the proceeds from dues collected among the county high schools for a scholarship fund. It may take a while for the funds to build up, but eventually some boy or girl will receive a start to a college education.

The oldsters have been getting pretty good attendance at their meetings. Maybe there's a lesson there for some of our younger adults.

The stories that will be retold at the annual get-togethers will be legion. The time the Red Jackjacks played the Chicago Bears and the old HyVis Oils took on the Pittsburgh Pirates, for instance.

One advantage of athletics is the memories. A few should be revived sometime this summer. One disadvantage is that "Old-Timer" Bob Harrison may forfeit his right to pitch one game in the City Softball League.

No Plug Needed

Although it's probably not needed, a plug for the Warren Kiwanis Sport and Outdoor Show this weekend is in order.

We say that it's probably not needed because the event has proved to be one of the most successful in the area.

One reason is the fine planning attended to by the Kiwanians. The show is always attractive and presents so many different forms of sport and recreation that there's something for everyone.

And don't forget about the Sports Boosters' display. One dollar will get you a "license" to complain about local sports. Without a membership, we don't want to hear it.

STEELE SHAVINGS - One aspect of "The Pill That Could Wreck Sport" column we overlooked: it's ironic that Sweden, the country that has championed THE pill is now complaining about our pill.

And it's interesting to note that while the 1968 Olympic Games will be held at sky-high Mexico City, the equestrian events will be held at a lower altitude so as not to endanger the horses. What fools these mortals be.

GET IN LINE, BOYS!

Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay playfully spars with a young friend in Dallas Monday and the lineup of potential challengers wait their turn at right. Clay has often said that his eventual successor is "a little ol' boy walkin' around the streets somewhere" and the next title-holder may be closer than he thinks. The champ is waiting out the latest in a long series of appeals to his draft board.

Pete Gogolak Hurts Back, Kicking Career in Doubt

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP) — His football future in doubt following a fall down a flight of stairs two weeks ago, place-kicking star Pete Gogolak of the New York Giants remained bed-ridden yesterday at this Army post.

A spokesman at Walston Army Hospital answered all telephone calls to Gogolak with the statement that he "does not wish to talk to the press."

The Army confirmed that Gogolak either slipped or tripped down about six stairs in his barracks on March 6. Ft. Dix authorities released the following statement:

"Pete Gogolak was hospitalized March 6 following a fall down a small flight of stairs. He was hospitalized for low back pains.

"Prior to hospitalization he had been seen on numerous occasions both at the dispensary and at the orthopedic clinic with complaints of low back pains.

"He gives a history of having back pain for the last year or more. During the period of hospitalization there have been no significant objective physical findings.

"He has been treated conservatively with bed rest and physical therapy. It is expected he will be hospitalized for approximately 7-10 more days."

Gogolak's father, Dr. John Gogolak, a psychiatrist on the staff of the Mt. McGregor State Hospital in Wilton, N.Y., told newsmen:

"I don't know really how serious it is. He is in very terrible

Court Clouts Clay, Champ's Call Close

CINCINNATI (AP) — A three-judge federal court rejected heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's bid yesterday for a court order to keep him from being drafted into the Army.

The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a terse order denied Clay's motions because the champion's draft problems were to be reviewed today by a federal district court at Louisville, Ky.

Clay's attorneys last week asked the appellate court to leave to appeal an earlier unfavorable district court decision and for a temporary injunction staying his induction pending his appeal.

Clay contended he would suffer "irreparable harm" if drafted and lose at least $460,000 in purse money for three fights in the near future.

The champion's managers announced Monday that talks about future title defenses had been suspended, but it was not clear when Clay — who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali — actually would enter the service.

The draft board at Louisville originally set April 11 for Clay's induction, but the champion recently obtained permission to be inducted at his new home town of Houston, Tex. This will mean a delay, but officials did not know just how long it would be.

The hearing at Louisville will be to determine whether a three-judge board should be set up to hear the champion's contention that he was the victim of racial discrimination. Clay filed suit saying there was an imbalance of Negroes on the Louisville and other Kentucky draft boards.

In the first rounds of his fight to stay out of the Army, the champion contended he was a Black Muslim minister and should be exempt from the draft. In appellate court proceedings Clay made no mention of his religious affiliation.

Wood Will Join Dooley's Staff

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Dick Wood, a veteran of seven years in pro football, was named assistant freshman football coach at the University of Georgia yesterday.

Wood, 31, played under Georgia Coach Vince Dooley when Dooley was an assistant with Auburn's undefeated team of 1958.

He played with the Baltimore Colts in 1960-61, with the San Diego Chargers in 1962, with the New York Jets in 1963-64, Oakland in 1965 and Miami in 1966.

FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY

Valek Tabbed for Illinois Grid Job, Schmidt, Cage

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Jim Valek, South Carolina assistant coach and Illinois football captain in '48, will be named the Illini head football coach to succeed resigned Pete Elliott. The Associated Press learned yesterday.

The university is planning a news conference today to make official announcement and also to name a head basketball coach to replace Harry Combes. He is expected to be Harv Schmidt, '57 Illinois basketball captain.

Combes and Elliott were forced to resign in the recent Illinois slush fund recruiting scandal.

Valek, 40 who played end on the Illini's 1947 Rose Bowl championship team, was interviewed by the Illinois Athletic Association's board of directors Monday night. He remained in Champaign last night, a spokesman said, adding that since Valek is staying in the city "you can draw your own conclusions if he will attend Wednesday's news conference."

Agase had been prominently mentioned as a top candidate for the Illinois job.

Schmidt, who was named most valuable player on the Illini's 1957 cage team, has been serving as assistant basketball coach at New Mexico.

Emile Tries Clay's Act At Signing

NEW YORK (AP) — A confident Nino Benvenuti and an irritable Emile Griffith traded barter and half-seriously threatened to come to blows yesterday as they signed for a world middleweight boxing title fight in Madison Square Garden April 17.

Challenger Benvenuti, of Trieste, Italy, drew an angry reaction from Griffith when he walked up behind Griffith and tapped him on the shoulder to get his attention.

"Tell him not to be hitting me before the fight," Griffith said, waving his arms and looking around for someone to translate his remark into Italian.

Nobody did, and Benvenuti stood there smiling, his hands raised in a mock-serious fighting pose.

"Just tell him not to be doing that, that's all," said Griffith, and stalked away.

The boxers posed for pictures afterwards with the usual incidents of feigned punches but no more raised voices.

The 15-rounder will be Griffith's third title defense.

He won the crown from Dick Tiger on April 25, 1966, and outpointed Joey Archer in his two previous defenses. He has a career record of 52 victories and seven losses.

Benvenuti, the European middleweight champion, will be getting his first opportunity at the world title. It will be the 29-year-old Italian's first fight in the United States. He has lost only once in 70 pro bouts.

The fight will be televised nationally in color with the New York City area blacked out.

OUTLAWED IN COLLEGE, HI SCHOOL

Day of Dunk Done!

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Basketball dunking, a favorite sport of the big men, was outlawed yesterday for high school and college teams in the United States and Canada.

"We did this to equalize the offense and defense," said Clifford Fagan, Chicago, secretary of the National Basketball Committee.

Fagan said a safety factor also was involved in the committee's decision. "Many of the baskets were being bent out of shape and many times the glass backboards were shattered."

The committee, concluding its meeting, also announced another change to speed up the game and eliminate the stall.

"Any team that sits on the ball, or holds it, will be warned after 10 seconds. If the team doesn't advance, after another five seconds, a technical foul will be called," Fagan said.

Other changes, which become effective next season: Mandatory placement of benches for teams and substitutes on the sidelines.

No two members of the same squad can have identical numbers. "This didn't happen too often in college ball," said Fagan, "but it did in high school. Confusion resulted."

Greensboro Open Starts Today with Pro-Am Play

By KEN ALYTA Associated Press Sports Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Fifty-two pros, each teaming with three amateurs, work in a final tune-up for the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament while trying to win some pin money in today's pro-amateur preliminary.

The main event, 72 holes tomorrow through Sunday, has a $125,000 purse, biggest in the tournament's history and richest thus far this year on the professional tour.

The pro-amateur rewards the pros with $5,000, with $2,500 in merchandise for the amateurs.

When the tournament began in 1938 the total purse was $5,000.

Arnold Palmer, who'll be seeking his fifth Masters title next week, is in the featured pro-am pairing. His partners will be comedian Bob Hope, Walker Cup player Jack Lewis Jr. of Wake Forest College and Florence, S.C., and Bill Black, honorary chairman of the GGO.

Other pros heading teams include Doug Sanders, defending GGO champion; eight-time winner Sam Snead; Dan Sikes, Bob Goaly, Julius Boros and Tom Nieporte, all tour winners this year; and South Africa's

United States Clinches 5th In Hockey Play

By GEOFFREY MILLER Associated Press Sports Writer

VIENNA (AP) — A battered United States hockey team shook off injury and routed West Germany 8-2 yesterday, clinching fifth place in its final game of the world championships. The triumph qualified the Americans automatically for next year's Winter Olympic Games.

The Americans, with six men playing with assorted injuries, compiled seven points in seven games and a 3-3-2 record. They still have a chance for fourth place should Sweden lose to favored Canada Wednesday.

Russia already has clinched the title.

The U.S. team wrapped up Tuesday's contest in the first period with a flurry of four goals within six minutes, 28 seconds. The score rose to 7-0 midway through the second stanza, with three more scores in a three-minute, four-second span.

Finland defeated East Germany 5-1 in Tuesday's first game.

Gary Player.

Virtually all the top money winners will be after the $25,000 top prize. Notable absentees are Jack Nicklaus, Billy Casper and Gay Brewer. The starting field will total 144.

The par 71 Sedgefield Country Club course will measure about 7,000 yards from back tees.

Broncs Not Selling To Phoenix

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Gerald H. Phipps, Denver Broncos official, said yesterday that a Phoenix group has offered $8 million for the Bronco franchise in the American Football League.

Phipps said the offer was made verbally by a group headed by Karl Eller, president of an outdoor advertising firm in Arizona, and was to have been followed by a written offer, "but I haven't seen that yet."

He is chairman of the board of Empire Sports, Inc., which owns the Broncos and the Denver Bears baseball club, and his brother, Allan, is president. The brothers own controlling interest in both clubs.

"Phoenix, as you know has been an eager beaver for a professional football franchise for about 2 1/2 years," Gerald Phipps said.

"They have applied to both the AFL and NFL. After our stadium bond issue was defeated, they got in touch with us again, repeating their eagerness for a franchise."

Phipps said when he vacated at Phoenix after the defeat of a $20-million stadium bond issue March 7, Eller, Robert Whitlow and others met with him about sale of the Denver franchise.

"I told them we were still exploring every possibility about keeping the club in Denver," Phipps said, "and until we reached a real dead end, we would not consider any offers."

"We intend to make every effort to keep the Broncos here."

Down The Right Alley

(c) New York Times News Service
FORT MYERS, Fla.—The Pittsburgh Pirates had just broken the record with 215 double plays last season and the player bus bubbled with bright badinage on the way back from the ball park. Most of the needling was directed at Bill Mazeroski, team captain and a chief architect in setting the new mark. "You gotta be the greatest of all second basemen, Maz," shouted a voice from the back of the bus.

Maz squirmed uncomfortably and then bolted upright when the attack was pressed from the most unexpected quarter of all. "But you played 10 years without setting a record," said the new voice. "You never made one until I came along."

The quiet Maz was dumbfounded because the jibes had come from the equally quiet roommate, Gene Alley, but then he noticed that the fellow sitting alongside his buddy was Jim Pagliarini, the sharpest of the Pirate needlers.

"Pag egged you into saying it," accused Maz and Alley nodded agreement, almost as if he was glad that the real culprit was discovered.

The two have the closest of relationships both on the field and off. Not only are they acknowledged as the best double-play combination in the business but each is individually ranked at the top in his league, Maz as the finest second baseman and Gene as the finest shortstop.

Mazeroski was an all-star second baseman when Alley was still in high school in Richmond, Va. But Gene came up so fast last season that his place of eminence has now been solidified. The thing that did it was his batting average of .299. Up to then he had everything else. A hitting shortstop, however, is extra special.

"I rate Alley as the best," said Harry Walker, his manager and a not unbiased witness. "He's the complete shortstop. He has a great arm, he's quick, he has marvelous range, he has better than average speed, he hits to all fields, he's one of the best bunters in the game, he's an alert base runner and he has a wonderful attitude. I won't say yet that he's the best shortstop I ever saw but if you give him time he'll be there with Pee Wee Reese and Phil Rizzuto."

Because Richmond was then a Yankee farm, the wiry Gene grew up as a Yankee fan. But the Bombers were so overstocked with talent at the time—this was before their larder suddenly became depleted—that they showed no interest in him, much to their regret today.

Even when Gene was in the minors as a Pirate farmhand, however, Johnny Keane recognized skills in embryo and tried to get him for the Cardinals. Chub Feeney also strove to get him for the Giants. Pittsburgh flatly refused some extraordinarily attractive offers. The Pirates held fast to their prize prospect and are most happy about it. At the age of 26 Alley has long years ahead.

Gene reached the varsity for inspection in September of 1963 after five years in the minors.

"As a kid," he recounted today, blue eyes flashing at the memory, "I saved baseball cards. One that I cherished was of Warren Spahn. And in my first big league game I came to bat against one of my idols, Spahn. I was too scared to get a hit off him. I grounded out."

He was up to stay because the perceptive Danny Murtaugh was the Pirate skipper and he reasoned out the situation astutely. "I just thought," said Danny, "that he'd improve a lot faster in the big league atmosphere than by going back to the minors."

Gene got the feel of it in a utility role that year and then came a break in the spring of 1965. The first phase of the break was a broken foot sustained by Mazeroski. This gave a different kind of break to Alley who filled in for his roommate at second. When Maz returned in May, Gene replaced Dick Schofield at short and hit a not unhandsome .252. Few dreamed, though, that he'd be flirting with a .300 mark last year.

"The Pirates have so many good hitters," he said, "that it becomes contagious. You see all the others get hits and it makes you want to, too. I might have reached .300 last season if I had not gone 1-0-8 in a rainy doubleheader the day before it ended. I know I had three hits the last day but it left me a point short of the .300 every ballplayer wants most."

Red Schoendienst, the Cardinal manager, is an Alley booster. "He's great," said the Redhead. "For consistency of play from the first day to the last he's tops."

"Alley is a throwback to the old-time shortstops," says Pie Traynor, unanimous pick as Hall of Fame third baseman. "He can do everything and he can hit the long ball. He's one of the finest shortstops I ever saw."

The Pirates once had the greatest shortstop who ever lived, Honus Wagner. This means that even no. 2 can be a rather exalted role.

McCovey and McCormack Star in Giants Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Willie McCovey drove in three runs and Mike McCormack pitched well for seven innings yesterday as the San Francisco Giants beat the Chicago Cubs 4-1 in an exhibition baseball game.

It was Chicago's ninth defeat in 10 games, while the Giants are 12-6 in exhibition play. McCormack, bidding for a spot in the Giants' starting rotation, allowed just four hits.

Rusty Staub's triple touched off a three-run inning for Houston and the Astros went on to beat Pittsburgh 4-2. Jim Pagliarini homered for the Pirates off Bo Belinsky.

Bob Gibson went seven innings and gave up six hits as St. Louis beat Los Angeles 3-1. Orlando Cepeda homered for the Cards and Julian Javier and Curt Flood both had three hits.

The New York Mets scored twice in the 10th inning off reliever Ruben Gomez, trying for a comeback, and beat Philadelphia 9-7. Gene Mauch, Phillies manager, was thrown out of the game as a result of a leaping incident in which Bob Shaw of the Mets hit Clay Dalrymple's helmet.

Jim Gosger drove in three runs with a homer and a single as Kansas City beat the New York Yankees 5-4. Bill Robinson drove in all the New York runs with a three-run homer and a double.

Doug Camilli drove in three runs with a punch single and a double as Washington beat Baltimore 5-2 in a game called after eight innings because of darkness.

Jay Johnstone's bases-loaded single with two outs in the fifth inning drove in two runs and led California to a 3-1 victory over Cleveland.

Harold Dobson Hits 715 at Sugar Bowl

Harold Dobson rolled his first 700 series last night in the Pepsi Cola League at Sugar Bowl Lanes.

He tossed games of 246, 225, and 244 for a lofty 715 mark, best in the county this year. Dobson's previous high series had been 647.

DP COMBINATION

Shortstop Gene Alley (left) and second baseman Bill Mazeroski of the Pittsburgh Pirates set a major league record for double plays last season. Alley is the subject of today's Arthur Daley column.

Star Eagle Gridded Bound for Penn St.

Youngsville Eagle football star Gary Carter will be playing his football next year at Penn State University if he is named to the team.

Carter has received a full grant-in-aid scholarship to Penn State.

Carter, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Carter of Bear Lake, was a three-year letterman in football, basketball and track while at Youngsville.

The eagle senior plays football at a weight of 225. He stands 6-2 1/2.

As an Eagle, Carter started every game in his three years on the varsity. This would make a total of 25 consecutive games.

During the three years he played the team ran up a total of 20 wins, four losses and a tie. In his first year the team was 4-4-1. In the final two seasons the team has gone undefeated winning a total of 16 games.

Carter was named to a spot on the All-State honorable mention list. He was named to the first team, both offensively and defensively in the Crawford County league. Carter also made one of the weekly "Big 33" checklists.

According to his coach, Toby Shea, Carter is a "tough ball player." Shea said that though he excels on defense he is a more than capable player on offense.

According to Joe Paterno, head football coach at Penn State, Carter is one of the finest prospects in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio.

Shea said that he thinks Carter has the ability to play football at Penn State. He said that it is all up to Carter as to how good he wants to be.

Jones Stars In Celtics' Playoff Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Cool Sam Jones gunned in 51 points as the Boston Celtics downed the New York Knickerbockers 118-109 last night and won a National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series three games to one.

The defending world champion Celtics, second in the Eastern Division in regular season play, now play division winner Philadelphia in a best-of-7 set beginning March 31 in Philadelphia. The winner of that series plays the Western winner for the championship.

Jones, hitting on his deadly jump shot, poured through 19 points in the first quarter as Boston built a 31-22 lead.

But the Knicks, who had upset Boston Sunday night on the Celtics' floor, fought back in the second quarter. After falling behind by 11 points in the quarter, the Knicks, led by Freddie Crawford's 10 points, closed to within three, 60-57, at halftime.

New York could not keep pace with Boston's shooting in the third quarter and the Celtics opened up a 90-79 lead despite Celtics player-coach Bill Russell being on the bench the entire period because of foul trouble.

Easy Meat 'N' Potatoes Meal

No fancy trimmings in this meal! It's a simple, straightforward meat-and-potatoes menu, and the results are simply delicious. When you want a dinner that's guest-worthy, yet ready in just about half an hour, serve this trio: Broiled Lamb Chops, Butter Fried Potatoes.

NEW RECIPE

Here's a great new recipe for potatoes: they're better fried with onion and parsley for added zest. Serve with Broccoli with Polonaise Butter Sauce, and tender lamb chops broiled with a touch of garlic.

tatoes and Broccoli with Polonaise Butter Sauce. The longest cooking period is the mere 30 minutes it takes to simmer those savory Butter Fried Potatoes.

When the potatoes are turned out of the skillet, golden-brown and lightly crusted, fried in butter and sprinkled with parsley and onion. . .Mmmm. . .that's good eating! And what a tantalizing fragrance! You may think they're the usual Cottage Fries but these potatoes go into the skillet raw, so the texture and flavor are quite different.

There's a new touch to broccoli, too. Instead of serving these dark green flowerets with a simple sauce of melted butter, dress them up with Polonaise Butter Sauce. Call it "Polonaise" for the savory toasted bread crumbs; call it heavenly for the luscious blend of butter, mushrooms and lemon juice. Top off the dish with a contrasting layer of pale-yellow sieved hard-cooked egg.

The meat of this menu is lamb, a springtime favorite now available the year 'round. Simply broil the juicy lamb chops with a sprinkling of salt and garlic salt. With broccoli, Buttered Fried Potatoes, and milk to drink, it's an easy, economical meal.

BROILED LAMB CHOPS
4-6 loin lamb chops, cut 1-inch thick
Garlic salt
Salt
Sprinkle chops with garlic salt and salt; place on broiler pan. Broil 5-10 minutes per side or until desired degree of doneness.
BUTTER FRIED POTATOES
3 tablespoons butter
3-4 cups thinly sliced red potatoes
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
In a large skillet with cover melt butter. Add potatoes to skillet; cover and cook over medium heat, turning occasionally, for 25-30 minutes. Remove cover; add more butter to skillet if necessary. Add onion and parsley. Fry potatoes until golden brown. Add salt and pepper. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

BROCCOLI WITH POLONAISE BUTTER SAUCE
1 1/2 pound fresh broccoli
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped mushrooms
2-3 teaspoons lemon juice
1/4 cup toasted bread crumbs
1 hard-cooked egg, sieved
Cook broccoli. Meanwhile, in a small skillet melt butter; stir in salt. Toss mushrooms with lemon juice; add to skillet and saute a few minutes. Stir in bread crumbs. Serve over broccoli; top with sieved egg. Yield: 1/2 cup sauce.

HOME'S ON THE RANGE
FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A herd of about 30 antelope has been causing damage to fields and orchards in this area. The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish decided to use a helicopter to frighten the antelope into pens so they could be transported to a new range farther east. The fleet-footed antelope largely ignored the helicopter and still are on the range. The reason: their present range is close to Farmington Airport and they are used to low-flying aircraft, game officials said.

Borough Acquires Land For Proposed Swim Pool

Warren Borough is acquiring land for a swimming pool between Oak, Elm and Peach streets and the railroad tracks next to Conewango Creek.

Borough manager Victor Miller said Monday that one piece of land on the site has been condemned and that another piece is being negotiated. Miller said the two lots cover the entire swimming pool site.

Borough Council voted March 13 to acquire the assets of Warren Recreation Center Fund, Inc., said Miller. The borough will add $76,000, he said, to funds already collected.

Miller said the borough will construct, own and operate the swimming pool. He said he thought the project's total cost would be in the neighborhood of $250,000.

Architects are now working on pool plans. County planner Robert Peterson said plans will probably be ready in about six weeks.

ROBINSON, Pa. (AP)—Two state policemen killed Richard Lichtenfels, 35, with a volley of gunfire yesterday, ending a shooting spree and manhunt which left two men dead and two teen-agers wounded.

Police said Richard Lichtenfels argued with Clark over the youth's attentions to his daughter, Darlene, 15.

The teen-aged boys ran out of the Lichtenfels home in this Indiana County town and were wounded as they stood on a neighbor's porch, officers said.

Albert Lichtenfels approached the home after hearing the shots and was killed with a shotgun blast.

When police arrived on the scene, the gunman had vanished and officers began a search of the neighborhood.

Acting on a tip from a telephone company employee who reported a phone call from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNulty asking about the condition of the wounded youths, police entered the McNulty cellar.

Police said Lt. James Barger and Trooper John Bardroff spotted light glinting off a metal surface and ordered Lichtenfels to surrender. Police said he refused and fell dead in the exchange of fire.

Mr. and Mrs. McNulty, both in their 70s, were arraigned on a charge of aiding a criminal and released on $2,000 bond.

The wounded youths were hospitalized in fair condition.

Task Force To Organize Today

State Senator Richard C. Frame, as chairman of the Legislative Task Force on the Homestead Tax Exemption for the Aged, has called an organization meeting of the Task Force for this morning.

Senator Frame is chairman of the Task Force consisting of 18 members of the Senate and State House of Representatives, charged with the feasibility of exempting from real estate taxation those over the age of 65 who receive less than $3,500 gross income.

According to Frame, 12 states now provide some form of tax credit or tax exemption on the homes of older persons.

The senator said that the Task Force would study amounts and conditions for qualifying for the exemption; financing the exemption without imposing a drain on local governments and school districts and redistribution of the property tax impact.

Frame is the sponsor of a proposed constitutional amendment introduced in the senate in late February to permit exemptions of those over 65 from local real estate and per capita taxes in certain circumstances.

raised by one-cent a quart. Hartison said that milk dealers are not getting a "reasonable return" from their product.

Labor costs have increased and have amounted to about one half cent per quart during the past year, he said. He also said milk dealers have been operating on a profit level of approximately one and one-half cent on the sales dollar.

"This is not a healthy situation," he added.

He said the dealers made far better returns on such items as fruit juices, novelties, ice cream, butter, cider and other items.

"Milk should at least provide a reasonable return itself," he told the commission, under court order to look into minimum wholesale milk prices in Greater Philadelphia.

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

Invasion of privacy is the fastest growing nuisance in the country today, and perhaps the most dangerous.

It's not just a matter of violations of the Green River Ordinance, with uninvited people banging on your door. That's small potatoes compared to some of the bigger aspects of the business.

Just the other day, for instance, a fellow up in Connecticut decided he wouldn't let the motor vehicle registration people know where he'd moved to. The reason: he did not want his address to end up on the mailing list of one of the hundreds of companies who send out hundreds of thousands of pounds of junk mail. The vehicle registration bureaus of all 50 states regularly sell their updated lists to such companies.

He's facing a stiff fine or maybe a jail sentence because of his protests and it points up the inequities of it all. We pride ourselves on protecting the rights of the individual. We have a Supreme Court which goes overboard to make sure those rights are preserved. We have recourse. The problem is that it would cost more money than the average person can afford if these violations were taken to the Supreme Court.

It's much easier to accept the mail we do not want, pay the taxes which pay for our receiving it, and dutifully tell the motor vehicle registration people where their friends can get in touch with us.

But there must be a better way. Whatever happened to that Yankee indignation, anyhow?

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter written by "Grandmother-In-Waiting" couldn't have come at a better time. Like many other girls, I am pregnant and will soon sign papers to put my child up for adoption. I have been dreading this terrible ordeal for months, but now that I have read the grandmother's beautiful letter I know my child will be received by loving arms. Until I read that letter I was heart sick and miserable. I was sure I had let down my parents, my friends and my child. It never occurred to me that my sorrow could bring happiness to others. When the grandmother described the new baby's room — ready and waiting — and the joyous parents-to-be counting the days, and aunts and uncles by the dozens waiting by the phone to get the happy news, I shed tears of happiness. What is ahead for me will be much easier to face now, Ann. I pray to God my baby will get the kind of welcome described by Grandmother-to-be, and in my heart of hearts I feel certain he will...GRATEFUL YOUNG GIRL

DEAR YOUNG GIRL: I received scores of letters from girls who share your problem. They all expressed deep appreciation to the adoptive grandmother who wrote. I hope this great lady sees your letter and knows how much good she has done. And now, here is another expression of gratitude.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: So much is said about the unwed mother these days. I wonder if anyone realizes the heartache of the woman who must give up her first grandchild.

Can you imagine what it means to suffer in silence when friends and relatives bring out their baby pictures, repeat their cute sayings and recount the joys of being a grandmother? I know, because I've been there. The grandmother of an out-of-wedlock child must be mature and strong. She must live with the knowledge that another woman, somewhere, is enjoying all the pleasures that might have belonged to her.

I pray with all my heart that my Granny substitute is like the wonderful woman who wrote the letter that appeared in your column. Please tell her so...GRANDMOTHER - IN - SILENCE

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: You told her — and in a way I never could. Thank you, dear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what you think of people who hang notes on furniture asking guests not to set wet glasses on the tables and admonishing cigaret smokers to use ash trays.

We have close friends whom we like to visit, but those notes stuck all over the house make my husband and me uncomfortable.

We are civilized people who have pretty good furniture at home and we don't need written instructions on how to behave when we go visiting.

Will you tell us if we are too sensitive or are they out of line? —UNWELCOME FEELING

DEAR FEELING: Those notes are an insult and you have every right to say so.

The gracious hostess provides coasters with the drinks and sets out sufficient ash trays. If a guest is too stiff to use a coaster or an ash tray he is not about to read signs. Clods who damage furniture should be policed carefully and not invited back.

Black-Staples Wedding Vows Exchanged In Darrab Chapel

Miss Rosalie Mae Black and Sherwood Phillip Staples exchanged wedding vows recently in the Darrab Chapel. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Whittington of 21 Stoneman avenue, Lakewood, N. Y., and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John M. Staples of Dewittville and Jamestown.

The Rev. Raymond Ridsen, minister of the First Methodist Church at Buffalo and Lakeview streets, officiated at the double ring nuptial service. There was no music during the service, but white flowers were arranged on the altar table with palms near the altar.

The bride approached the altar in a pink silk linen ensemble. The sleeveless sheath gown was street length and over it was a matching jacket with three quarter sleeves and a softly draped collar fastened off-center. Matching pink veiling was gathered to a Dior bow of silk linen. A crescent shaped corsage of white roses with small pink flowers and tied with white ribbon was pinned to her jacket. Completing the ensemble were shoes of matching pink. Her only jewelry was a pearl choker and earrings, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. William Whittington was the matron of honor for her daughter and wore a jade green silk sheath jacket dress with re-embroidered lace bodice. A jade velvet Dior bow secured a brief veil and she wore a corsage of white roses with green flowers.

The second matron of honor, Mrs. Donald Barnhart, was in a light blue silk jersey dress with three-quarter sleeves and a blue velvet Dior bow securing her brief veil. Mrs. Barnhart's corsage was of white roses with dainty blue flowers.

Groomsmen were Mr. Donald Barnhart and Mr. William Whittington, father of the bride. A reception followed at the home of the parents of the bride, from 3 to 6 o'clock, with seventy-five guests in attendance. Clusters of balls hung from the chandeliers, and the centerpiece on the buffet table was an arrangement of a miniature bride and groom standing between lighted white tapers. The three tier wedding cake and punch were served at separate tables. Brian Bogey played organ music during the entire reception. Aides were Miss Diane Maddox, Miss Sandy Merwin, Mrs. Janet Trussalo, Mrs. Stella Johnson and Mrs. Myra Ewing.

For a honeymoon trip through the Eastern part of New York State, the bride wore the same ensemble as at her wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Staples are now at home at Bonita Lane, Fluvanna.

The bride is a graduate of Jamestown High School and of the Jamestown School of Practical Nursing. She is now employed at the Hillside Nursing Home. The groom attended Celeron High School and served with the Army and Navy in Korea. He is now employed at Dahlstrom's.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Miss Diane Maddox, Miss Sara Griffith, Mrs. Janet Trussalo and Mrs. Edna Wyant. Out of town guests attended from Warren and Stoneboro.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

In The Mailbag

DEAR EMILY WILKENS:
GO GOLD
I've tried all kinds of eyebrow pencils and brush-on products, but find they give a darkish, harsh effect. My brows are too light, "au naturel", but I hate to look artificial. My hair is reddish gold. Any suggestions?

Mary L.
Your coloring is made to order for a gold eyebrow pencil. Keep it well-sharpened with a clean pocket-size pencil sharpener. Feather on lightly with short, quick strokes. Brunettes who like a natural effect, by the way, might try a silver pencil. SMUDGY SECRETARY

I'm a secretary and do a great deal of typing. My hands are constantly smudged from carbon paper. Is there any way to keep them clean? I can't run to the washroom every ten minutes.

Miriam P.
If you smooth on a silicone lotion before handling messy things like carbon paper, you'll find your hands will stay clean twice as long.

CUCUMBER CUT-UP
I've heard that the cut side of a cucumber may be rubbed on the face to bleach out freckles. Is there any truth to this?

Wendy W.
Frequently cucumbers work well as a mild bleach. Whirl a peeled cucumber with 1 tbsp. of skim milk powder plus a little water in your blender. Apply to face and neck, let dry, then rinse off with cool water. Many beauties swear by this cucumber mask.

SNEEZE STIFLER
Every time I brush on mascara, I start to sneeze. The result, of course, is a mess. I know it's a silly question, but is there any answer to my problem?

Elaine T.
To stifle an oncoming sneeze, place your forefinger horizontally under the tip of your nose and press firmly, then blow your nose.

You just may be allergic to the mascara you're using. A switch in brands might be in order. Or perhaps you're sensitive to the hair content of the mascara brush bristles. Try another type of applicator.

PERSPIRATION PROBLEM
I perspire very heavily, but all the deodorants and antiperspirants I've tried irritate my skin. Is there something milder I could use which would still be effective?

Andrea D.
Try dissolving a heaping tablespoon of baking soda in two cups of water. Pat on underarms and let dry. You may use this mixture twice a day, morning and evening, if desired. It's safe to use after hair removal, too.

LIP LINER
No matter which brand of lipstick I use, it blurs and runs over at the edges. How can I help it "stay put"?

Patricia L.
Powder lips first. Then outline your lips with a hard lead liplining pencil. Fill in color with your regular lipstick; blot thoroughly. This process should keep the color where it belongs. Emily Wilkens welcomes letters, but cannot undertake to answer each one. She will use questions in her column of general interest. Address your letters to Emily Wilkens, c/o this newspaper.

Hints From Heloise

Blanket Holder Idea

DEAR HELOISE:
An inexpensive magazine rack makes a very attractive holder for blankets or comforters.

Just fold up the blanket neatly, put it in the magazine rack, and place the rack right beside your bed.

You then have the blanket handy if you need an extra one at night.

Also, this eliminates getting out of bed in the middle of the night to poke around in the closets.

Nor do you have to fold it on the foot of the bed each day where it many times falls off.

V. J. D.
What a hot idea for a cold person. Great!

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When I make hot tea I insert the tea bag tally into my cup handle.

This way the tally never falls into the cup when pouring in the hot water.

Mrs. F. Arko

DEAR HELOISE:
When I have finished with a pattern, I always write on the outside of the envelope the exact amount of material actually used.

The next time I use that pattern, I know the exact yardage it requires and thereby save some on materials.

Shirley Morningstar

DEAR HELOISE:
I loosen the glass stoppers in my decanters and glass bottles by holding the neck of the decanter over the flame of a candle and turning the top to heat it slowly and evenly. (Don't let it get too hot.)

This will expand the glass neck enough to release the stopper.

All one has to do afterwards is to rub the stopper of the glass bottle with the candle wax. Then scrape most of the excess wax off the stopper.

This will leave the pores in the glass filled with wax and mustard gives just the right flavor accent. To complete the main course serve a salad of tossed crisp greens.

Butter or margarine
1 cup diced cooked ham

..... prevent it from sticking again! Henry J. Moyer

DEAR HELOISE:
I took a small book and placed different colors of floss between the leaves with the ends sticking out the top of the book.

Now, it is no trouble getting to the right color—just open the leaves.

Also, I put my needles through the front covers and keep a rubber band around the book when it's not in use.

This idea saves time, trouble, and money.

Skeeter

DEAR HELOISE:
Be sure and wipe off your chrome whistling teakettle when hot or quite warm instead of when cold.

You will have a clean, shiny one.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠. Failure to capitalize on a favorable bit of distribution cost South his vulnerable game contract in spades.

West ordered the queen of clubs and declarer permitted him to hold the trick. West observed that a continuation was not apt to be profitable so he shifted to the ace of diamonds. East signaled for a come-on with the eight and after winning the continuation with the king which completed his defensive book he put North in by switching to a trump.

A club was ruffed by declarer and he returned to dummy with another spade. He led the ten of clubs next in the vain hope that the ace might fall thereby establishing North's king for a discard. No honor came up however and South tried the heart finesse next. Dummy's jack of hearts held and the ace was cashed. When the king did not appear declarer conceded himself to be down one.

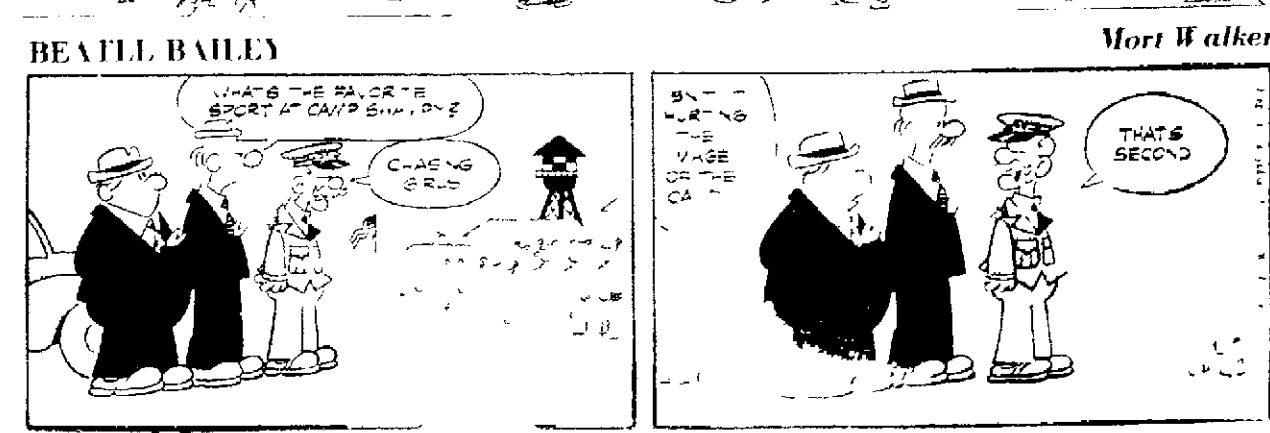

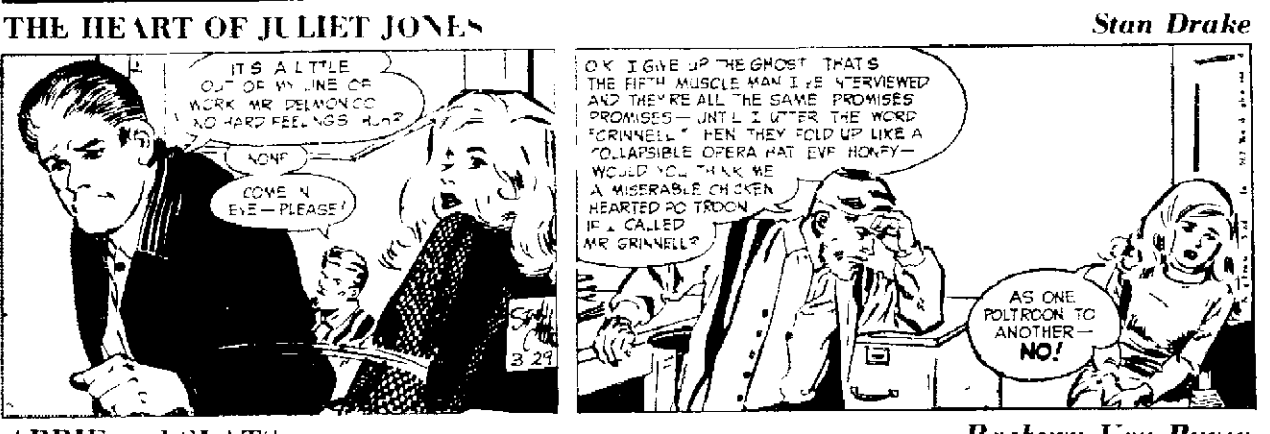

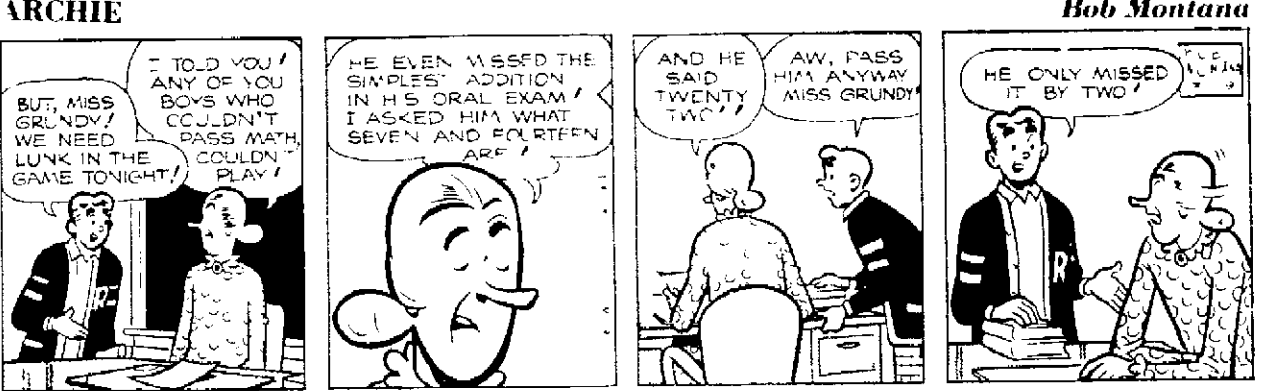

Inasmuch as the heart finesse must succeed if South is to have any chance at all he should mentally assign the king of hearts to West as well as the jack of clubs with which he is pretty well marked from his opening lead. By removing the ace of clubs from East's hand South can transfer protection of that suit as well as the hearts to West—which according to the principles of the squeeze play is a physical impossibility provided that the prescribed technique is utilized.

After drawing trump it is suggested that declarer lead dummy's king of clubs. East is obliged to cover with the ace as South ruffs in his hand. He now proceeds to lead out all the rest of his spades. As the last trump is played West is down to the jack of clubs and the K-10-3 of hearts. He must keep his club to protect against North's ten. However when West gives up the small heart South finesses dummy's jack, cashes the ace which drops the king and then his queen takes the final trick.

Your Horoscope
By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1967

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Attractive propositions for an engaging folks? Be doubly careful what these entail. Can you afford to accept? Look carefully; do not act hastily.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — There's a tendency now to borrow trouble. Don't yield to it. Tact and firm handling of your program can control situations and bring you the dividends due.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Do not tarry in urgent matters. On the other hand, digest all facts and deliberate when a situation is not clear. Instinct and conscience are good voices to heed. Gains may not show immediately.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Your Moon, generously aspected, should give you a revived feeling of optimism. Keep on your toes, to avoid errors. But, remember, you don't HAVE to outstrip all competition.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Solar aspects suggest that you expand — WITHIN reason. Tread cautiously in new areas but go forward confidently on familiar paths. Progressive ideas can enhance your standing.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Attend to details carefully. You can lead competently, or follow with skill and enthusiasm — for pleasure or remuneration. Activities will increase as the day progresses; maintain a steady pace.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Spread out your efforts, thus making new friends achieving your uppermost goals more quickly. Don't wait for fate to deal you a good hand; you must make your "breaks."

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — A fine day for those of you who put forth diligent effort. Do not let "little flies in the ointment" disturb you. Be your understanding self.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — The position of Jupiter suggests that you be wary of overdoing or overplaying your hand. Evaluate true needs, determine essentials. Tackle commitments in order of importance—and with verve.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Saturn's position auspicious. Stress your charm, personality, humor; display vigilance; direct energies toward the accomplishment of real objectives.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Give consideration to ideas and methods that "clicked" before, and could again. Add a bit of glamour to presentations. Be optimistic.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Fine Neptune influences. But don't let down effort. You must, even on good days, accentuate the positive. In free hours, relax with friends, family.

YOU BORN TODAY are sensitive, have tremendous propriety and an individualistic way of winning contests and admiration. You should head straight for goals without qualms. Earnings are there, and satisfaction for effort, which gives most contentment. 1967 needs some daring to reach beyond the usual; but get all the facts as you go along. Guess-work is definitely out! Birthdate of John Tyler, 10th President, U.S.A.

How to Keep Well
By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

COLD PREVENTION

Much can be accomplished by using common sense in the prevention of upper respiratory infections. We suggest the following:

1. Maintain clean surroundings to minimize the virus population. The viruses responsible for colds are located in the nose and throat secretions. They are spread into the air while breathing, talking, coughing, sneezing, or blowing the nose. An individual with a cold can hardly avoid contaminating the floors and furniture in an office or home. Good ventilation and the avoidance of overcrowding also help.
2. Develop good health habits. Do not spit, cough, sneeze, or blow the nose without protecting the face so that the germs are kept in the handkerchief and not scattered into the air. Washing the face and hands several times a day decreases the chance of acquiring the causative organism by the hand-mouth route.
3. Fatigue and sudden changes of temperature alter the defense mechanism of the membranes of the nose and throat. Some persons have found they are more likely to "catch cold" when they are overtired, do not get enough sleep, or go thru a period of physical stress.
4. The relationship between emotional stress and colds was suggested by a detailed study of absenteeism. Colds were 12 times more prevalent among workers with a poor attendance record. The majority were discontented, unhappy, and difficult to get along with.
5. A well balanced diet improves general health. On the other hand, no particular food will increase resistance to infection.
6. Children usually have a greater number of colds than do adults because they are in more intimate contact with people.
7. But all things being equal, some individuals are more resistant to colds than are others.

FAT AND THIN

A. M. P. writes: Are the slim as well as the obese (of the same age) subject to poor circulation of the feet?

REPLY

This depends upon the type of circulatory disturbance you have in mind. Arteriosclerosis leads to poor circulation of the legs in older persons and since the overweight are more prone to hardening of the arteries, they are earlier candidates for impaired circulation. But the thin are not immune to poor circulation and may develop the condition from other causes.

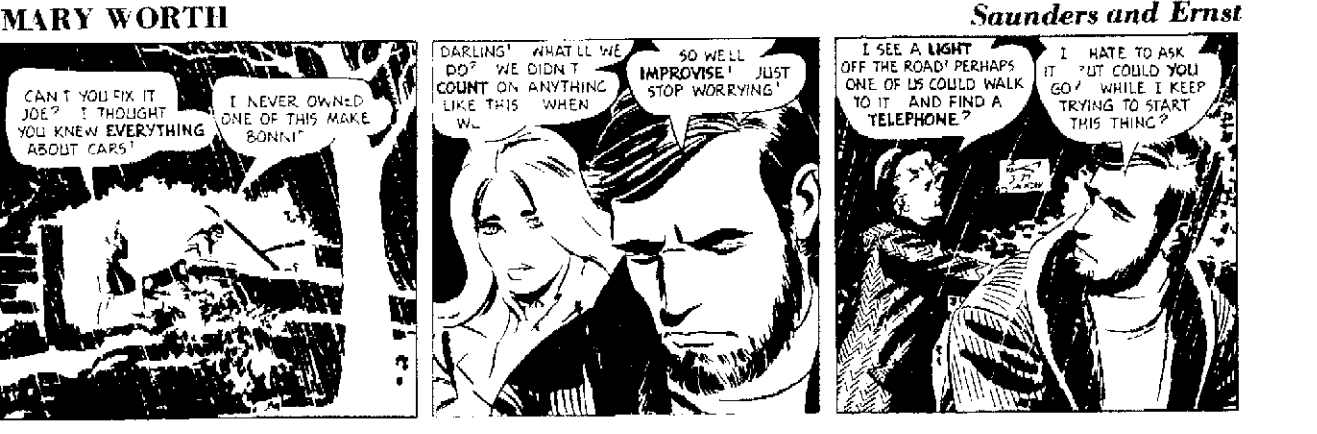

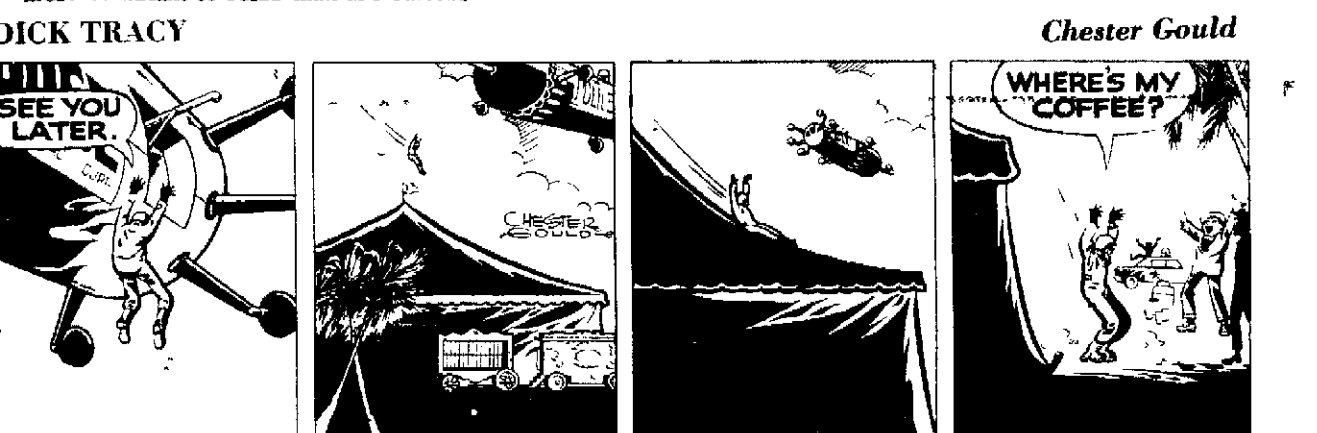

DEPENDS ON CAUSE

C. V. writes: Is jaundice contagious?

REPLY

Jaundice means yellowish discoloration of the tissues and as such, is not contagious. There are many causes, of which viral hepatitis is one that is contagious. It may occur in epidemic form but here the organism is transmitted via contaminated food or water rather than thru personal contact.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT—Physical activity provides a good outlet for inner tensions.

Wednesday's TV Highlights

THE VIRGINIAN at 7:30 p. m. on Chs. 2, 6, and 12 presents "The Girl on the Pinto," with guest stars Valora Noland and Warren Stevens. Trampas falls in love with a beautiful girl and helps her resolve some of her problems.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES at 9 p. m. on Ch. 7 presents a western saga, "These Thousand Hills," starring Don Murray, Lee Remick, Richard Egan, Patricia Owens and Stuart Whitman. This is the story of two cowhands who ride into a Montana town in the 1880's... one becoming a prosperous rancher with political ambitions, the other an outlaw.

CHRYSLER THEATRE at 9 p. m. on Chs. 2, 6, and 12 offers "Verdict for Terror," starring Cliff Robertson, Jo Van Fleet, Michael Sarrazin, Michael Constantine and Betty Ackerman. In a bizarre trial immediately following a law school fraternity dinner, the brother of a death-sentence victim attempts to prove that his loved one's life was sacrificed by a prosecuting attorney seeking political advancement.

1 SPY at 10 p. m. on Chs. 2, 6, and 12 offers "Casanova from Canaries." A meek ex-government file clerk's (Wally Cox) knowledge of the U. S. nuclear program makes him the target of a modern-day Mata Hari (Leticia Roman).

we care

why should we guarantee other people's products?

If we didn't, we couldn't honestly say
WE CARE. Could we?

You see, before any product is allowed on our shelves, we've checked it out pretty carefully.

We've checked the company that makes it.
We've checked to be sure the product is all the package says it is.

If you ever buy anything at A&P you're not happy with, you don't have to bother to write a letter to the company that made it.
Just tell your A&P store manager.
He'll give you your money back.
We'll get in touch with that company for you...and for us.

That's A&P's guarantee. No matter who makes it, if A&P sells it, A&P guarantees it.

Not every store can offer you a guarantee like that.
A&P can...and does.
Shouldn't A&P be your store?

3-HP, 20-IN. SELF-PROPELLED
MOWER WITH VACUUM ACTION DESIGN

Save your strength this summer! Enjoy effortless mowing for the price of a push-rotary! Just lift handle to move forward, lower to stop—let the husky engine by Briggs & Stratton provide the muscle! Rotary and deck create "tornado-like" vacuum action that lifts grass as you mow. Then it's cut evenly and ejected to prevent clogging. Exclusive safety-lift height adjusters . . . one front and one rear.
